SPECIES AMBASSADORS

I am board member of the newly founded Species Ambassadors, a nationwide association in Denmark whose purpose is to support all species ambassadors in their work of being a spokesperson or representative for a specific species.

On September the 12th to 13th, there will be a "Nordic Summit of Species" in Aarhus, Denmark.

BECOMING BAT

This Spring, I am doing 10 x school workshops in Aabenraa in collaboration with Danish Bat Association and World Wildlife Fund. We will become bats through mask theatre, play and dance. Furthermore, I am making a bat sculpture together with visual artist Phuc Van Dang which will be hung on the facades of a barn in Kildedalby where the brown long-eared bats come every night to hunt for moths. I will also be doing a performance there and facilitate a bat print workshop March the 30th from 10-13 in Kildedalby.

The photo on the left, captured by Adam Amsinck, is from a bat meditation with Sydhavn Teater and Sydhavnens Venner where over 50 people were becoming bats.

"Becoming Bat" is a lifelong exploration of how to fly, scream, listen to echoes, rest in colonies, navigate through darkness, etc. I share my findings and methods with others to create stronger alliances with the fascinating bat species.

BECOMING SPECIES

Again this year, we will do school workshops in "Voices of Nature" at Teaterbutikken in Copenhagen where we become local species through mask-making, play, physical theatre. We make small performances with the kids about eco-systems and species interconnectedness.

For the first time, we are doing a series of open becoming species workshops at Kulturhuset Islands Brygge in Copenhagen kickstarting the first one with "Becoming Octopussy" on February the 18th from 17-20.

"Becoming Species" is a performance climate activist collective founded in 2020. We become species to amplify the voices of nature and to take back space for the diversity of life.

PERFORMANCE - NATURE - COMMUNITY

All what I do is to strengthen the multispecies alliances in our time of biodiversity crisis and to build a world where we do not survive but live and thrive upon the ruins of the capitalist system which is soon to come. I believe in us, the power of the people, to create change.
